An estimated 99% of Muslim students in America attend public schools. A whole generation is being raised without the benefit of even Friday sermons because they are in school at that time.

According to a survey, about 50% of Muslim students face bullying. 75% say they are discriminated against. While many of these challenges are faced by other students, let's face it, it is not easy to be a young Muslim today. So many actually hide their faith, distance themselves from their parent's heritage and culture to be accepted.

Fortunately, some of these Muslim students are connected with the Weekend Islamic schools. However, it is just for 3-4 hours a week and teachers are mostly not trained to teach Islam or handle a classroom.

For that reason Sound Vision is offering the Weekend School Teachers Training program. Please register today.
